Gen. COMLEY, editor of the Ohio State Journal, having been nominated for Governor by a correspondent of the Ashtabula Sentinel, writes to Mr. Howells, editor of that paper, declining the honor in the following brief note: Dear Sir:-Be kind enough to say to my gallant friend, Major Covell, that I am not candidate for any office, until after Franklin county shows a majority for Manhood Suffrage. Very truly, J. M. COMLEY.

Upon which the Sentinel remarks: This defines the General's position clearly enough; but we are serry to see him put hi services out of the reach of his friends, beyond such a contingency as a majority for Manhood Suffrage in Franklin county.
